She's a nurse, she's forty, she's fit and she's a catch. But she's never stood still long enough for anyone to catch her. Improbable, hilarious patient interactions are a daily occurrence for Jill. This week in her life included a funeral roast, a nudist colony and a hoarder's home with a snake and a ferret. Jill pronounces the poignant and touching death of a patient to whom she owes her thanks. There's more drama at the office too. Then Jill gets roped into a girls night out at the cowboy bar. There's only twenty-four hours in a day, Jill! Nurses will love this book. It will remind them of their best nursing days. Those without any medical background will see the inner workings of the health care system...especially, hospice care. It's not sad though because even death can't stop love.
