Interiors Sandra Nunnerley

Sandra Nunnerley has worked on prestigious residential interior design commissions around the world—from urban apartments and town houses to tropical getaways to country homes and estates—for over 20 years.

Interiors lavishly chronicles Nunnerley's design vision, as expressed through these exquisite projects. Sumptuously illustrated with beautiful photography thematically organized in chapters on Serenity, Individuality, Refinement, Glamour, and more, the book documents how a wide variety of inspirations, including her globe-spanning travels, have influenced Nunnerley's work and how she thinks about design, suggesting how we might also look at the world around us to arrive at our own design approach.

For the first time, fans of Nunnerley's graceful and global vision can appreciate her attention to every subtle detail in splendid residences, many of which display important art collections and dramatic architecture. Included are such projects as Nunnerley's design for a thoroughly modern home featuring site-specific commissions by world-class artists, and a glamorous duplex that once belonged to Hollywood producer Jack Warner in the Sherry-Netherland Hotel.

"As European editor for Architectural Digest and later creator of Architectural Digest France, I've closely followed the evolution of Sandra Nunnerley's career. Her background in architecture and fine arts gives true depth to her work, and in her beautiful book, she brings the past and the future together with style."
