Please (A Short Story) Kindall Gray

This story was originally published in Day One, a weekly literary journal dedicated to short fiction and poetry from emerging writers.

Family lore had it that her aunt Marilyn used to be beautiful—before the incident. But now, when young Tallulah visits, she sees only the sad, haunted woman that Marilyn has become.

Driven by a child's yearning to understand adult drama, Tallulah is an eager audience to her mother's and grandmother's accounts of Marilyn's assault and its aftermath. In their stories she finds a warning: with beauty comes danger, and those who love you cannot protect you. As Tallulah grows up, she attempts to understand her family's response to tragedy—and their seemingly cruel manner of dealing with its victim.

Told from Tallulah's intelligent, compassionate perspective, Please speaks to the fallibility of collective memory and the enduring damage wrought by blame.
