Give a Man a Fish: Reflections on the New Politics of Distribution (The Lewis Henry Morgan Lectures) James Ferguson

In Give a Man a Fish James Ferguson examines the rise of social welfare programs in southern Africa, in which states make cash payments to their low income citizens. More than thirty percent of South Africa's population receive such payments, even as pundits elsewhere proclaim the neoliberal death of the welfare state. These programs' successes at reducing poverty under conditions of mass unemployment, Ferguson argues, provide an opportunity for rethinking contemporary capitalism and for developing new forms of political mobilization. Interested in an emerging "politics of distribution," Ferguson shows how new demands for direct income payments (including so-called "basic income") require us to reexamine the relation between production and distribution, and to ask new questions about markets, livelihoods, labor, and the future of progressive politics.

Lauren Smith:

As a scholar exactly feel bored for you to reading. If their teacher requested them to go to the library or even make summary for some publication, they are complained. Just tiny students that has reading's spirit or real their interest. They just do what the educator want, like asked to go to the library. They go to at this time there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that looking at is not important, boring and can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is being complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this period, many ways to get whatever we wish. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country.
